Pandora's Song

Lyrics

There once was a man who made people out of clay
The gods told him not to, but he didn't obey
He gave his people fire but didn't tell the gods
He knew he'd be punished but he thought 'what were the odds?'

*Oh Prometheus you should've been careful
The gods felt betrayed and very vengeful
Oh Prometheus you should've been careful
The gods felt betrayed and very vengeful*

Zeus found the smoke and sought revenge
Little did Epimetheus know he was on the edge
Zeus crafted Pandora and gave her as a gift
Epimetheus saw her and couldn't resist.

*Oh Prometheus you should've been careful
The gods felt betrayed and very vengeful
Oh Prometheus you should've been careful
The gods felt betrayed and very vengeful*

At the back of his cupboard there was a stone jar
Pandora found it and her curiosity got too far
She opened the jar even though she was forbidden
The bad things got out and cursed all the living things.

*Oh Prometheus you should've been careful
The gods felt betrayed and very vengeful
Oh Prometheus you should've been careful
The gods felt betrayed and very vengeful*

Amongst all the violence, sickness and more
Just as Pandora was closing the door
Hope came out just before
And released the world from hunger and war.

*Oh Prometheus you should've been careful
The gods felt betrayed and very vengeful
Oh Prometheus you should've been careful
The gods felt betrayed and very vengeful*
